INTERNATIONAL TRADE LAW MONTHLY ALERT

JUNE 2024 EDITION

WTO, FTAs:

WTO holds first formal meeting on dispute settlement reform

WTO members met at Heads of Delegation level on 30 May for their first formal meeting on dispute settlement reform, with an initial focus on how to resolve issues regarding appeal/review and accessibility. The facilitator of the process, Ambassador Usha Dwarka-Canabady of Mauritius, said the discussions revealed a "strong appreciation for the dispute settlement system overall" as a core element of the WTO system.

EU requests WTO consultation on Colombia's compliance in frozen fries dispute

The EU has launched WTO compliance proceedings against the Republic of Colombia in view of its failure to comply with rulings by the WTO Panel and of the Multi-Party Interim Appeal Arbitration Arrangement's (MPIA) Appeal Arbitrators concerning anti-dumping duties on imports of frozen fries from Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany. Colombia claimed to have implemented the findings and recommendations. However, the EU considers that Colombia artificially created and/or inflated the dumping margins by using WTO-incompatible methodologies.

Uzbekistan plans to join World Trade Organization by 2026

Uzbekistan plans to join the World Trade Organization before the 14th Ministerial Meeting, which will be held in 2026 in Cameroon. The chairman of the working group, Ambassador of South Korea Yoon Sung-dok noted the "accelerated pace of negotiations", emphasizing that the process of Uzbekistan's accession to the WTO "has reached a new level".

Turkmenistan Officials in Georgia to Prepare for WTO Application

A delegation from Turkmenistan has arrived in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi on a study visit to research the best practices for accession to the World Trade Organization (WTO), and promotion of national trade policy. This was reported by the state media agency Turkmen portal.

The visit, organized by the OSCE Centre in Ashgabat, will reportedly last from 27 to 31 May. The delegation includes representatives of the Ministry of Finance and Economy, Ministry of Justice, the Central Bank, and the State Customs Service.

WTO talks on deal to end fishery subsidies likely to reconvene in June

World Trade Organization (WTO) members are expected to reconvene in June to negotiate a deal that eliminates harmful fishery subsidies, according to Ernesto Fernández Monge, a senior officer at The Pew Charitable Trusts who has been a leading observer of the talks across the course of their failed attempts. In the Abu Dhabi Ministerial held this year, progress was made on limiting subsidies that go toward distant-water fishing activities; however, WTO members remain deadlocked on the extent and phase-in periods of exemptions for developing nations that wish to pay subsidies to artisanal fisheries. Some developing countries, with India leading the charge, object to any deal that limits payments to subsistence fishing, arguing that leading industrialized fishing nations are the chief culprits of overfishing globally and should be the primary targets of the ban on subsidies. The progress made in Abu Dhabi will help to form the basis of discussions during the next negotiating process.

Support to farmers, food security, outdated data — WTO members question India's agriculture policies

Several member countries of the World Trade Organization (WTO), including Canada, Brazil, Australia, Japan, the UK, and the US, have questioned India over the 50 percent increase in the support it provided its farmers in 2022-23. Other decisions, too, by the Indian government have come under question, such as the 21 percent increase in the amount it has allocated for public stockholding for food security.

India opposes US, Australia allegations on its sugar subsidies breaching WTO limits

India has firmly opposed a joint counter notification submitted by the US and Australia at the WTO alleging that its sugar subsidies breached WTO norms by a wide margin. It questioned the methodology used for calculating the subsidies and argued against the use of the rupee in making the calculations on the ground that the currency was "heavily" impacted by inflation.

EU's deforestation law that could hit Indian exports opposed by many WTO members

India's concerns on the EU's new Regulation on Deforestation-Free Products (EUDR), that would restrict exports of several items to the bloc from this year-end (December 30 2024), have been shared by a number of other WTO members who all asked for its postponement at a recent meeting in Geneva. New Zealand, Australia, Brazil, Indonesia, Paraguay, Ecuador, Guatemala, Thailand, and the United States, all shared their misgivings on the new law and asked for postponement of its implementation.

British poll cloud over India-UK FTA, freeze on trade expansion

The India-UK free trade agreement (FTA) appears to be heading for another stalemate after 13 rounds of negotiations over 2 years and several deadlines, as a successful fruition of the deal looks elusive, even as the UK and India reiterated the ongoing commitment to negotiate a mutually beneficial FTA during the annual UK-India Strategic Dialogue meeting on 17 May 2024. The India-UK FTA covers 26 subjects, key ones being goods, services, IP, government procurement, SPS measures, TBT, competition, rules of origin, trade facilitation, customs cooperation, small and medium-sized enterprises, trade and sustainable development, labour, gender, digital trade, dispute settlement, general provisions and transparency.

India fighting pressure at WTO to allow 'plurilateral pact' on investment facilitation

India is under pressure at the WTO to give its consent for inclusion of the proposed China-led investment facilitation for development (IFD) pact in the formal WTO framework as a plurilateral agreement (endorsed by some of the members), but it is refusing to give in. India continued to oppose the move stating that investment is not an issue for discussion at the WTO.

Indian plans to file a complaint to the World Trade Organisation over the European Union's proposal to impose 20% to 35% tariffs on imports of high-carbon goods like steel, iron ore and cement from India. This is part of New Delhi's strategy to combat the EU's Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) designed to push local industries to invest in new technologies to bring down carbon emissions, while also raising the issue in bilateral talks.

United States

Fear of coming change in US sends shock waves down Morbi's famed tiles cluster

Tiles companies allege that a minimum of 25% of US orders have been suspended, with potential for further halts following the petition for anti-dumping duty submission to the US government. This setback comes amidst already reduced demand, attributed to increased duties in Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) countries and economic deceleration in Europe. The US ceramic tiles business is heavily import dependent and India is one of the exporters. There are fears among US companies that they may have to end up paying heftier import levies if the anti-dumping duty is imposed in retrospective effect. As a result, many have currently halted orders to India.

AD/CVD laws to create 'significant disadvantage' for SE Asian PV imports

The flurry of recent tariff changes for solar imports to the US is likely to make products from Southeast Asia less attractive to buyers, according to renewables analysis firm Clean Energy Associates (CEA). The combination of the newest antidumping and countervailing duty (AD/CVD) tariff investigation and President Biden's recent removal of tariff exemptions on bifacial solar modules "could significantly disadvantage products from Southeast Asia in the US market", CEA said.

EU producers claim they are being undercut by Asian companies mixing cheaper feedstocks and mislabeling fuels to qualify for EU incentives.

UK imported e-bikes could be £260 cheaper if government follows Trade Remedies Authority recommendation

The Trade Remedies Authority (TRA) has said current anti-dumping and anti-subsidy tariffs on e-bikes from China should be revoked. The TRA say this move could save consumers on average £260 per e-bike, benefit the economy by £51m a year, and result in 31,000 more e-bike sales. The current anti-dumping and anti-subsidy measures were put in place to protect the EU and UK e-bike market from cheaper products coming from overseas. However, having reviewed the effect of both tariffs, the TRA found that the economic penalty they impose is greater than the benefits they bring.
